All we now want to insure the State to the Democracy is a good ticket. And we again way-Let prudence be observed in the selection of delegates to the State Convention ; for it de pends upon the complexion of the Convention whether we shall succeed or fail this Fall. Let. manuary be the watchword ; exclude professional mischief makers from the deliberations of the Convention ; give us an unexceptionable ticket and we will almost wipe republicanism out of the State next October. In this matter HARMOSY and victory are synonyms.

"PURE HUMANITY," AGAIN -Our friend Nighols, of the Springfield News, has "filed a lengthy will of exceptions" to our article last week on "pure humanity." We do not believe that we could improve on our former article, which he quotes; and we are obliged to him for copy. The me ing it. It answers the purpose exactly. We will remark, however, that our friend seems to have been unfortunate in making his points.— He says, "Bushnell could have had no other motive than the purest humanity in rescuing the boy, John;" and in the same paragraph asserts -This one act has given him more import-ance and a better name, the land over, than years of toil and efforts to other directions would have given him." This language would make have given him." This language would make a pretty strong impression upon the public mind that other motives than those dictated by "pure humanity" had something to do with Bushnell's conduct on that occasion. Would it be easting too odious imputation upon Sime on "a "importance" and "better name" to see the conduct of the heart of G. Smith, deceased, by HENNY I. RECOMMENDED. on's "importance" and "better name" to sug great that a desire for that notorioty which the News holds up so high, had something to do with the act in question? The News agrees with us in the main; and we are puzzled to know whether he intends his article as a serious defence of his friend, or is slyly making game of him. If the former, Simeon may well say-"Save me from my friends;" if the latter, then he has succeeded better than he probably intended.

Our "position" in these regards, at home, is Just releved from the Eastern Cities, and solved too well known to require any thing from us full, consisting in part of at this time. The Empire will furnish evidence for or against us, daily. The estimatemporaries abroad is evident from the fact that our articles, political and otherwise, are freely copied and beartily endorsed.

From a good many favorable notices of the Empire since its enlargement, we select the following as a fair sample of what is thought of our "position" in intelligent cir-cles away from bome :

cond things are generally done up in small parcels; but since its enlargement the Empire has been more spicy, more observant, more entertaining and instructive than ever. Firm in its politics, it has lost none of its old fire, and even glows the more brightly, as it grows older. It deserves every bit of the prosperity it has, and more.—Columbus
